TEACHERS AND TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. Maher, Chairman of State Tuberculosis Commission, Tells How Teachers Can Work For Seaside Sanatorium-Is Needed For the Children of the State-4,500 Cases of Glandular and Bone Tuberculosis.

Of statewide importance and interest is an article appearing in the New Haven Teachers Journal, upon the subject of Teachers and Tuberculosis by Dr. Stephen J. Maher of New Haven, chairman of the state tuberculosis commission. Dr. Maher makes an argument for the establishment of the state in the catchlishment of the summer cottagers. The Connecticut summer cottagers use the beach for eight weeks of the year, and therefore in the catchlishment of the state in the catchlishment of the summer cottagers. The Connecticut summer cottagers use the beach for eight weeks of the year, and therefore in the catchlishment of the state in the catchlishment of the argument for the establishment of seawide sanatoria, for the treatment of surgical tuberculosis, which in-cludes glandular tuberculosis and bone tuberculosis.

Dr. Maher says that reports show there are about 2,500 cases of glandulear tuberculosis and 2,000 cases of lar tuberculosis among the school children of the state, and he wants about the school children of the state, and he wants are public opinions sufficiently. children of the state, and he wants to have public opinion sufficiently educated to have the legislature to grant enough of an appropriation to provide an institution to care for at least 100 of the little sufferers.

Sites for such sanatoria, some of them along the seashore in this end of the state have here looked over of the state, have been looked over, but the opposition of summer cot-tagers has been encountered, when it was proposed to have a sanatorium located anywheres near them. Teachers and Tuberculosis.

In part Dr. Maher's paper was as follows: Teachers who remember what the conditions were in Connecticut twen-ty, fifteen, or even ten years ago, will I think, agree with me when I say that during the periods of time men-tioned, consumptive children have almost disappeared from our schools. They he/e not disappeared from the state. They no longer go to school. Nowadays, perhaps by advice of school doctor or nurse, little John or Mary is kept home and turned over to the feature of the dispense. the family physician or the dispen-sary, or the visiting nurses, or the sanatorium, and the dreaded cough is no longer heard in the class-room.

This result is, of course, due to the campaign against tuberculosis that has been waged with such energy and with such public and private generosity during recent years. It is a result to remember and to proud of. No little of the credit for the seconing of this result is due to the tactfully exercised influence of the school teachers of the state. I would like to focus your attention on another part of chronic swellings or lumps in the neck or under the arms are caused by the tubercle bacilus. The child with the tubercele bacilus. The child with a tuberculosis swelling on one or both sides of the neck, or in the armpits may not appear sick. Nevertheless, his future usefulness, and his life even, are in greater jeopardy than they would be if he had typhoid or small-pox. The very fact that these glands, swellen with tuberculosis, may be tolerated by the child for months; and sometimes for years without combe tolerated by the child for months, and sometimes for years without complaint, does not mean that they are not doing the child harm. But if, as the result of an injury or of an attack of some ordinary sickness of child-hood, the little patient's power of resistance to the constant efforts of the tubercle bacilli to escape from their prisons is lessened, the child is almost certain to have its whole system suddenly assailed by hungry hordes of microscopic enemies, who gradually settle in the covarious of gradually settle in the coverings of the brain or in the lungs, and soon add another to the long line of their victories over the human kind.

That is glandular tuberculosis.

Bone-Destrying Germs. "But bone tuberculosis," you exclaim. "Surely we don't see any of that in school." Yes, you do. Have you seen no hunchback child in school? Have you seen no child with its head twisted permanetly to one side? Have you seen no child in school with an immovable shoulder, or elbow joint? Or with swellen and permanently stiff wrist or fingers? That is bone tuberculosis—bone tuberculosis of the less harrowing types.

Raw Milk and Tuberculosis. We know, of curse, that glandular tuberculosis frequently follows mea-sles and scarlet fever and suppurative conditions of the mouth, throat and conditions of the mouth, throat and ears, but we know also that it occurs without any discoverable prefortory illness. We know that bone tuberculosis frequently follows a slight injury, but we know also that it develops without a history of hurt. For many years one of the most eminent European specialists, Dr. Nathan Raw of Liverpool, has been trying to persuade the medical profession that all glandular and bone tuberculosis in human beings is caused by drinking milk from tuberculous cows.

His argument, drawn from findings His argument, drawn from findings in laboratories, hospital wards, surgical operations, and from the results of the municipal substituting of boiled milk for raw milk, is very impressive. I am not yet convinced that he is right, but, in searching for the cause of a given outbreak of glandular or bone tuberculosis, it is important to bear his theory in mind.

How Teachers Can Help to Cure. This paper of mine is not designed to be a scientific disquisition on the cause of the disease. Its design is simply to call your attention to the disease and to a means of curing it The ordinary treatment is surgical The ordinary treatment is surgical, that is, the prompt cutting out of the affected glands and the affected parts of bone. This treatment is not satisfactory because of its failure to prevent recurrence of the disease and because of the grievous multilations that result from it.

Seaside sanatoria for bone and glandular tuberculosis are in operation in most civilized states that look on the sea. Connecticut looks on the sea from a hundred miles of coast, but it has no seaside sanatorium. Why not? Because public opinion has not been strong enough or well chough organ-the last few months the State Tuberculosis Commission has tried to find the answer. The replies so far received from the teachers and others having charge of children indicate that there are in Connecticut about 2,500 cases of glandular tuberculosis, and 2,000 cases of bone tuberculosis.

We don't expect the state to provide accommodation in seaside sanatoria for such an enormous number of patients. If we can persuade the legislature next winter to give us an institution that will care for even one hundred of our little sufferers, we will be satisfied; for we know that the lessons taught by it would quickly bring increased private and public benefactions, and would place Connecticut in the front rank of these enlightened communities that fight tuberculosis with all the weapons at their command, with strategy as well as force, with brains as well as dollars. Fred Dugas, the well known roller skater and dancer, will give an exhibition at the benefit whist which is to be given in the near future by the Jacques Sacred Heart church in the Parish hall. Mr. Dugas is not lacking in quality along this line as he is among the top notchers, having formerly been on the stage.
